Grate Wall of Fire

Dear Walnut Hill Forge,

As an architect we are always searching for new and better ways to create simple, elegant and functional solutions to design problems. You have done that with your Grate Wall of Fire.

Currently my family and I are renting a home while our own residence is under construction. The rental home has a huge, poorly designed masonry firebox that even with careful log loading and tending smokes terribly.

I thought, wouldn't it be a good idea to create grate that actually held the logs to the back of the fire box. Before doing any drawings, I searched the internet and found your product. The design looked simple and efficient. I purchased one and not only is it attractive, it works!

With minimal tending, our rental home fireplace does not smoke. As an architect we design Rumford fireplaces into our residential projects. Since the fireplaces are often loaded incorrectly, our clients complain that the fireplaces smoke. From now on we will recommend your grate as a way of building a smokeless fire, a fire that distribute heat and conserves fuel due to its simple and effective design.

Sincerely,

Keith Moskow AIA
